Statements Bankers Are Refusing Sound Loans— Describes Reasons for Reduced Volume of Credit.

TIGURES supplied by typics., wellrenegat benke in different parte of the country show that a high proportion of all applications for loans have been granted in the past year or two, says Albert W. Atwood in a recent article in The Saturday Eur ning Post on "The Idle Doller " Bz corpts from Mr. Atwood's article fol-

"Prequently banks state that as high as 90 per cent of all such applications are granted and for from 60 to 75 per cent of the amount maked for. Allowing that the bankers make these figures as favorable to their own case as possible, it seems strange that we are told again and again that banks are not lending. "If we take into account the whole class of regular bank borrowers, the plain fact is very few want to borrow yet. For the word 'borrow' is merely another name for the word "deht, and we face a great world wide drive to get out of debt

"An experienced small-city banker. asked if banks were lending freely enough, wisely replied: 'The really good borrower does not wish to bot row now. In fact, I think our ous paidedly republican a few years; tomers are making a comarkably fine showing in paying of their loans, especially loans of long standing.

The Shrinkege of Credit

"Or if we think of business conis conservative to say that those able to maintain high credit ratings have been mostly the ones able to main tain ample cash resources and therefound themselves with plenty of cash because of the abritance in operations. Cash resources were still further awollen by reduced dividends, and smaller inventories made bank borrowings still tess necessary.

"Expressed in another way, banks cannot expand credit, they cannot tuake loans, unless there is a dethe business transaction makes the loan, the loan does not make the transaction It is a mistake to try to force upon business organizations funds which they do not need Under the circumstances, the 'idle dollar' is a natural and proper enough phe nomenon. A demand for cred! is dif-Reult to create artificially, and there is always danger in to doing.

"Banks must be inid enough at all times to pay depositors. The lites of a commercial loan is that it rep. resents a self-liquidating process isthose advances that are inburently sound, and selects his maturities wisely, he will have incoming funds to meet demands.

Government Lending

"As everybody knows, the Govern ment has vast lending agenutes. for home owners, farmers, and the like These have nothing to do with the subject of this article, except that all such Government operations would be impossible if the banks did not lend the Government money for the

"No one can set a time when bor rowing will be resumed. But it will come-when men once more feel that conditions are sufficiently settled to warrant them in taking chances, in extering upon deals, and in trying to make money."

Mr. Atwood says that it may be that the banks are overcutious now just as they were overconfident in 1929, but calls attention to the fact that until a little more than a year ago banks were failing "partly be cause they had loaned too freely and wars being criticized right and left for precisely that." He adds:

"Indeed, the banks which had been cautious in their lending policy came through the crisis safely. Un der much conditions it is utterly use less to criticize banks for not mak ing loans. After the experience they had for several years, especially in 1932 and 1933. 't is only natural that they should relax their requirements very slowly and gradually.

"Unfortunately, many of the applications for ionns are not from people who want temporary banking accom-modations for three or six months and are quite able to meet their maturity dates, but are from those who really need permanent capital. They are busted and they want some one to stake them to a new start. What they really seek is a partner to faratsh there with long-time capital. But depositors insist upon being paid on demand, and, therefore, it is a grave question whether banks should tie up their funds for any

THERE is an interesting report eleculating in Wisconsin, especially in Madison. It is to the effect that President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin is looking toward the Republican Presidential nomination in 1936 and that this idea explains his refusal to permit Lloyd K. Garrison to remain in Washington as head of the national labors relations board.

The Madison Capital Times said it understood Doctor Frank feels the Republican party is in peed of a "liberal" candidate, yet not & 'dangerous" [[bera], and believes he is in a position to qualify. To interviewers Doctor Frank declined to comment on the newspaper story. He said his insistence that Garrison return to his dutles as deep of the law school was solely in the interests of the university.
